Vol. XXXV, No. 2

Loyola College — Baltimore 10 Maryland

September 29, 1961

(L. to r.) Ed Conery, the best actor, and Marty Snyder, best set designer, sit in front of one of Marty's prize-winning sets.

Best Actor, Actress Presented Awards

Before a capacity crowd of 230, which brought the three night total to a record attendance of 505 people, the Masque and Rapier Dramatics Society last Saturday night held its first annual awards presentation in Cohn Hall immediately following the final performance of "My Three Angels," this year's first dramatic endeavor.

Conducted by Father Scanlan, the moderator of the Society, the awards were inaugurated this year to pay tribute to last season's performances. In chronological order, they were as follows: "The Importance of Being Ernest", "Loyola Nite" (although not a Society production is conducted by the Society), "The Male Animal", "Passion Poison, and Petrification" (Loyola's entry in the Annual Jesuit One Act Play Contest), "Ghosts", and last but certainly not least "Caligula."

Conery Best Actor

Top awards went to Ed Conery, best Actor, and Barbara McNamara, best Actress for their roles of Caligula in "Caligula" and Mrs. Alving in "Ghosts" respectively.

As best supporting actor, Ed Slawski was honored for his role as Engstrand in "Ghosts", and from the same play, Carol Goode was cited for her supporting role as Regina, Engstrand's daughter.

Best Sets

The award for best sets was captured, hands down, by Marty Snyder whose sets have graced all of last year's productions. The judges especially commended Marty for the set used in Act 1 of "The Importance of Being Ernest."

Tie For Director

Dennis Smyth, Director of "Caligula" and "The Male Animal", and John Synodinos, Director of the other productions, were given equal praise by the judges. They felt that both gentlemen had done an excellent job, and that it was impossible to reach a conclusion.

Just Judges

The judges were members of the faculty and for obvious reasons, wish to remain anonymous. We congratulate the judges on their choices, and extend best wishes to all winners.

Fr. Davish Visits Europe Five Others Leave College

Six faculty members have left Loyola College over the summer. They are Col. Misha N. Kadick and Capt. Austin Lawrence of the Military Science department, Fr. William Davish, S. J. of the Theology department, Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur of the Biology department, and Mr. Christ of the English department.

Col. Kadick was promoted to the rank of full Colonel and assigned to the National War College at Fort McNair in Washington, D. C. Capt. Lawrence has been assigned to the Seventh Armored Division and is currently on border patrol in Germany.

Grand Tour

Fr. Davish is studying and touring in Europe for a year. Fr. Lavin has replaced him as director of the library and Fr. d'Invilleers has replaced him in Theology class.

Dr. Wilbur is now the Dean of the Graduate School at Kent University. Mrs. Wilbur has moved to Ohio with her husband and is not teaching at present.

Mr. Christ to Pennsylvania

Mr. Christ is teaching English at St. Vincent's College in Latrobe, Pennsylvania, where he is head of the reading clinic. Mr. Hoegberg replaces Mr. Christ.

Building On Schedule Lights New Improvement

Father Paul J. Gilvary, S. J., the administrative assistant to Loyola College President, Father Beatty, announced earlier this week that the work on the new Physics-Engineering Building is proceeding on schedule. The structure was officially begun on March 25, 1961, when Father Beatty, assisted by Governor Tawes and Mayor Grady broke ground.

Located on the northwest corner of the Evergreen campus, this building will be the eighth major structure on campus and will eventually cost over one and a half million dollars. When completed the new building will rise five floors and will house seventeen classrooms and five science laboratories along with additional library facilities. The structure will be air-conditioned and will be serviced by elevators.

Summer of '62

Scheduled to be completed by the summer of 1962, the building will contain 54,000 square feet of space and will free many existing science classrooms for use by the other departments.

The stone for the facing of the building is of the same type used in the older structures, and was transported from the old Calvert Hall.

Lighted Lawns

Another new improvement on campus is the new light poles along the walkways. This project was completed last week and adds a more modern look to the campus. The lights will especially benefit the evening college.

Spot News

Help!

The Sodality of the Immaculate Conception is seeking a unique social activity to present after home basketball games. All suggestions are welcome. See Carl Cuneo, or slide suggestions under the door of the Sodality office as soon as possible.

Near Future

Plans are now being made for the Freshmen Welcome Dance which will be held on campus on Saturday, October 14.

Naval Invasion

On October 4 and 5 several Naval Air Reserve Recruiting Officers will be in the student lounge. Anyone interested is invited to contact them.

Quarterly Plea

Joe France, editor of the Evergreen Quarterly, has informed us that the Quarterly is presently accepting manuscripts for the fall and winter issues, and encourages all students with the ability and initiative to contribute to these and other publications.

Hats Off!

Congratulations to the Dramatic Society for their fine presentation of "My Three Angles" last Friday and Saturday nights. Special congrats to Ed Slawski, Dave Crocco and Paul Montgomery whose performance drew a record attendance.

Celebrating the 15th Anniversary of the Slater System on campus, Dorthy Nixon assisting another worker serves the onrush of hungry students last Wednesday in the cafe.

Editorial

Let Us Know

There has been considerably discussion lately regarding the purchasing of a Greyhound mascot, namely, a whippet puppy. The acquiring of this animal is completely in the hands of Joe France, editor of the Evergreen Quarterly. The financing is to be provided by the college, supplemented with funds acquired through a mascot-naming contest. Many people believe this to be a promising idea; others are not so quickly to approve of it. There are numerous details to be considered in properly caring for and displaying the animal. We would appreciate knowing the ideas of the students and faculty on this subject. So, drop us a letter; inform us and the rest of the student body of your opinions about "the pup."

Watch Your Step!

Several weeks ago, the Student Council passed a resolution that it undertake a campaign to remedy the situation, involving the college seal, in the narthex of the chapel. The college seal, the symbol of the school, since its installment in the chapel, has been subjected to unwilling disrespect. We say that this disrespect has been unintended; for circumstances often make it difficult to avoid stepping upon the seal. At the dismissal of the First Friday Masses the flow of students from the chapel is large and uncontrolled; so as to make it difficult for any one student to intentionally avoid the seal.

Also passed by the Council was a proposal that "if within a suitable period of time, the cooperation of the students cannot be obtained a guard of some type should be erected." We feel that such an ultimate action as this is uncalled for. Respectfulness should not be forced upon college men; nor should they be scolded for such thoughtlessness. Rather allow us to appeal to the dignity of the students: to begin a tradition, that, when possible, the college seal is not to be tread upon; thus exhibiting the pride the student has in its significance.

ATTENTION FROSH: Chuck Lancelotta, the Soph president, challenges all the freshmen to attempt to defeat the sophomores in a traditional social event, the Rugby Game. If the frosh win this bout, which will be new and different this year, they can discard their beanies.

The Watchdog

Now that the R.O.T.C. is back in session, we've been hearing rumors that there are certain P.F.C.'s who are P.O.'d with the C.O. about the P.R.'s new P.T. Our opinion: T.S.—(Tough Situation).

Vince Baldini swears that the policeman who is in charge of guarding the Vatican is called a "Papal Bull."

We caught the first drill of the year last week and noticed that quite a few Lieutenants had real crack outfits. Unfortunately, we can't print any of the cracks in the newspaper, but we are reserving space on the bulletin board in Student Union basement.

The student council sends word that it is currently thinking about making some improvements on the Game Room. Our suggestion would be to put in a couple of new wall—one in front of each entrance. The council, however, is thinking of sending in a fresh supply of dust and a couple of Red Foxx records to take care of any lulls in the swearing.

We've just gotten word that a couple of sick minds have come up with a new idea for starting riots in the Student Union Building. They're bringing in the McQuire Sisters to sing "King Size Cokes have more for you" in front of the new machines. That would be hard to compete with, huh Gene?

We have it on pretty good authority that the drinking regulations will be more severely enforced this year than they have been in the past. Reason: Father Bourbon's shoe laces are wearing out.

Congratulations to the two Seniors whose meritorious lives earned them an early return from retreat.

Bonjour Professeur

Mr. O'Donovan

Among the new faculty members who have arrived at Evergreen this year, there are many fine teachers. Foremost among these is a youthful looking scholastic with a ready smile and a quick wit. His name is Mr. Leo J. O'Donovan, S. J.

Mr. O'Donovan has been a member of the Society of Jesus since 1957 when he entered the Novitiate at Wernersville, Pa. He originally hails from New Rochelle, New York, where he received Christian Brother's training at Iona High School.

Pardon My French

After completing his high school education, Mr. O'Donovan journeyed to Georgetown where he received his A.B. in Philosophy in 1956. Later that year, he went abroad to study at the University of Lyons in France and returned to America in 1957, a year older and quite a few years wiser.

Wernersville provided the young Jesuit with his Novitiate training and the Loyola Seminary of the Philosophate of Maryland-New York

Mr. O'Donovan pauses on his way to class.

Leisure is the basis of philosophy.

Province gave him an opportunity to broaden his philosophical knowledge. It was from this institution that he came to Loyola College.

Later Plans

When his period of teaching at Loyola is completed, Mr. O'Donovan will begin a study of Theology for four years. During this period, he will have his tertianship.

Although he has only been at Loyola for two weeks, he has already become a favorite with the Junior Philosophy classes and with the Freshmen in his French sections. We are quite sure that he will continue to be well-liked wherever he teaches during his life.

Sticks and Stones

Last week, I somewhat vehemently attacked the Student Council of Loyola College for their failure to consult the student body in any way before plunging headlong into the purchase of a school mascot. I believe in giving criticism where criticism is due, as I think it was last week. However, I also believe in giving credit where credit is due, and so I would like at this time to commend the Student Council for their prompt response to numerous requests of the student body for removal of the new coke machines

Reviewing Stand

Last weekend the Masque and Rapier Dramatics Society closed out its first production of the season with "My Three Angels." Attended by record high of 505 patrons for a three-night showing, this dramatic comedy is concerned with the escapades of three prisoners, Jules, Joseph, and Alfred, portrayed by Dave Crocco, Ed Slawski, and Paul Montgomery, respectively.

In the part of Jules, Dave played a most convincing role and stole the show. As his partner, Ed Slawski gives another creditable performance as Joseph the embezzler, although he detracts from his performance by straining his voice so as to make him sound unnatural. Filling out this trio of Thespians is veteran sophomore actor, G. Paul Montgomery. Cast in the part of Alfred, Paul did a commendable job and added humor to this already hilarious play.

In the female lead, veteran Martha Monius played an enjoyable role as Emilie Ducoutel, the devoted wife of incorruptible businessman Felix Ducoutel played very well by Rich Lawrence, a veteran Sophomore. All in all the play was excellent, but Ed Conery's role as Adolphe was superb.

Since school re-opened this fall, I have encountered only one person who has commented favorably upon the mechanical bandits. That was the member of the class of '64 who deposited a quarter and received five nickels change and a cup of coke. He thinks the new machines are just dandy!

Most of the students have not been treated so kindly, and do not share this sophomore's views. To say that they are bitterly opposed to the new machines would be a mild understatement. And they are, I feel, justified in this feeling for a number of reasons.

First: There is a time element involved. Last year the student, desirous of a coke, deposited his money, received the bottle of coke and his change, opened the bottle, and proceeded on his way. This year the student deposits his money, receives his change while a paper cup falls into place, waits for the machine to fill the cup with a mixture of coke and foam, opens the little door, and carefully removes the cup. This process takes at least twice as long as last year's. The result is a series of long lines of students wasting their lunch time.

Second: There is a financial or quantitative factor. Last year a student received a 16 ounce bottle of soft drink for his ten cents. And he was guaranteed that he was receiving a bottle of liquid, not half-liquid and half foam. This year, a dime purchases a paper cup, with a capacity of 9 ounces clearly marked upon it. This is just slightly over one-half the amount of soda the student received for the same price last year. This is bad enough in itself--9 ounces for the price of 16. But most students don't even receive a full portion.

Besides watching the machines closely in order that he may be assured of having his proper amount of soda, the student is forced to watch the arch of the cup as it falls from the launching platform. Many times, the cup tilts at an impossible angle, forcing the student to rush to get his hand inside the little door to straighten the cup while the soda pours out over the sides of the cup, his hand, his shirt cuffs and coat sleeves. The local cleaning establishments might have grounds to demand a cut of the Coca-Cola Company's profits. I hope the ROTC doesn't increase the number of demerits for spotted uniforms. One of the NCO's would have a full time job typing up demerit lists, and the thirstier students, accustomed to drinking four or five cokes per day would be forced to set up living quarters behind the Dell building in order to have time to march off demerits. Then another cadet member would have to be around to keep an eye on these cadets, and ... These machines have got to go!

GREYHOUND SPORTS

by Tom Kenney

This Tuesday, October 3rd, marks the opening of Loyola's 1961-1962 sports card. On Tuesday, here at Evergreen, the Hound soccer and crosscountry teams will play host to their rivals from Towson State. The Greyhound sports staff wishes good fortune to these two hard-working Hound teams and also sincerely hopes that there will be a large turnout of students to lend moral support to our athletes.

It seems that, in this day and age, many people feel a bit squeamish in getting out and cheering at a sporting event. They feel that the athletes, busy on the field, either don't hear or care about their shouts of encouragement. It may be true that a soccer player, in the thick of a scrap for the ball, doesn't hear the fans but during the lull, when action is at the other end of the field, he can hear and does appreciate his friends yelling to him. It is a warm feeling for an athlete to know that someone is interested in him. It's a reason for playing harder.

The same holds true for a cross-country runner. In his gruelling 3.2 mile trek, the runner is alone except for the physical discomforts which constantly appeal to him to stop and rest. But if the spectators call a few words of support to him as he passes by, a runner forgets his bursting chest for a while. Pride and a desire to please those who cheer inspire that extra effort which often spells victory.

On Tuesday afternoon then, let's see a large and noisy contingent of students out on the athletic field. You can be sure that the Hound athletes will appreciate your efforts.

Rifle Team Sets Tight Schedule

With the return of only six marksmen to the rifle team this year, Sergeant Foley has expressed his concern for capable sharpshooters. To fill the void, he has over fifty applicants, but only a couple have had previous firing experience. Due to the shortage of army personnel, Sergeant Foley has not been able to instruct these future shooters nor allow the veterans to practice.

The team plans a schedule of about ten to twelve dual matches with forty to fifty postal matches pending. Competition in these postal matches include such institutions as the University of Seattle, Loyola of New Orleans, and Loyola of the South. Besides these matches, the team will compete in the National Competition for the Hearst Trophy and in the Second Army Rifle Matches. Last year the Hound shooters posted a 8-9 record despite losing 4 of their first 5 matches.

Rick Frampton

Ex-Hound Bree Signs With Nats

The Greyhound learned today that Charley Bree, hard hitting first sacker on last spring's Houndbaseball squad, has signed a contract with the Washington Senators of the American League. Although the exact figures are unavailable, it is reported that he received a bonus in the $20,000 range. Last Monday Charley departed for sunny Florida where, for the next two months, he and thirty-five other young Senator hopefuls will undergo an intensive training program.

Started At Calvert Hall

Charley's athletic career began at Calvert Hall high school in Baltimore where he won acclaim as a swimmer as well as a diamond performer. After coming to Loyola last fall, he took up right where he left off at the "Hall." He was one of the most consistent performers on the Hound's championship swim squad. In the Mason-Dixon finals, he won the 100 yard butterfly, setting a new Conference record of 1:00:6. On the diamond Charley paced the Loyola nine with a .375 average. In sixteen games, he knocked in 17 runs. His extra base blows included 5 doubles and 3 homers, two of which were tape-measure jobs. Lefty Reitz, Loyola's diamond mentor, has said that Bree "was the longest ball hitter I ever coached."

To Continue Education

Charley's future plans, besides playing ball, include continuing his education. He hopes to return to Loyola next year during the off-season.

Loyola Teams To Host Towson Here On Tuesday

After two weeks of tough training, Cross-Country coach Bill McElroy has finally hit upon what he hopes will be a winning combination for the Hound harrier's opening meet, Tuesday, October 3rd.

This year a nucleus of seasoned veterans, backed by six Sophs and two Freshmen, carry the Loyola hopes for a successful season.

This year's first seven runners are led by Rick Frampton, a Sophomore and reigning Mason-Dixon kingpin. Rick, known as the "Flying Pencil" to his mates, is the best runner ever to grace the Loyola campus. Lew Smith, the second man, is also the team captain. Lew is now a four year Greyhound veteran.

Junior Tom Kenney leads at the moment in the fight for the third position. Involved in the three way battle for the third spot with him are two other Juniors, Bill Jenkins and Henry McGraw. Jenkins, from St. Joe, has been a consistent performer in the past, and McGraw, of Hereford, is trying a comeback after sitting out last season with an injury.

Intramural Action Set

Nappy Doherty, our intramural director, has set the deadline for entries in the Touch Football League back to September 29 because of lack of interest so far. Only five teams have placed entries in the competition. They are the Hamilton Rek, Debits, the Science Majors, the Dukes, and the Foul Beagles. Since the 1960 Touch Football champs, the Moleskins, and their runner-up, the Hound dogs have both departed via graduation, the top positions are empty. The Dukes are the early choice to gain this top spot.

Freshman Entries

The members of the Freshman class are urged to show their competitive spirit as well as their school spirit by entering teams in the league. A student can get a lot of fun out of these sports and put his leisure time to good use. The Frosh have won intramural league titles in the past and there is no reason why a team from the class of 65 cannot do it this year.

There have been some entries in the tennis and bowling leagues but there is still room for many more. Freshmen are also urged to join in these activities.

The sixth and seventh spots are currently being fought for among Sophs Mike Kenney and Dan Leubecker and Freshman Jim Norton.

Soccer Prospects Promising

The outlook for the 1961 soccer season, which also opens here this Tuesday, Oct. 3rd., seems very bright. Coach Lefty Reitz has a fine group of Freshmen to blend with a nucleus of veterans returning from last year's squad.

Smooth Halfback Trio

Co-captains Jim Kennedy and Charlie Graham team with Soph Sam Amato to give the Hounds a fine, seasoned halfback unit. The Campbell boys, Rick and John (no relation) form an experienced fullback duo.

Elliot New Goalkeeper

Sophomore Mike Elliot has won the number one goalie job. However, Mike is also a fine halfback and Coach Reitz would like to see either Frosh Paul Cashour or Soph Alex Schlipp improve enough to handle the nets, freeing Elliot for halfback duties.

Strong Line

Leading the Hound front line is last year's M-D Conference scoring champ, Dennis Grabowski, at center forward. At outside left, Freshmen John Kircher of St. Joe and Harry Bregel of Kenwood are fighting for the starting job. Jack Palmer of Kenwood and Jorge Ordonez, a two two year vet who missed last season due to a leg hurt, are vying for the inside left spot. Joe Kosiorek returns for his third season at inside right, backed by John Kogler. At outside right a real scrap is shaping up among Carl Manfre, Vince Petronicero, and Paul Cashour.

Harmon By TKO

Bobby Harmon, capable assistant trainer of Loyola College, scored a T.K.O. over Irish Dick Murphy last Friday night at the Navy-Marine Corps stadium in Annapolis. Bobby put the Irishman down for an eight count in the fourth round with a hard left to the chin. Murphy got up but was groggy and the referee halted the bout.

Loyola booter Jim Kennedy engages Howie Becker of B.U. in pre-game scrimmage on Loyola field.
